

TD Asset Management USA Funds Inc.

2018 Preliminary Year-End Distributions

Please see table below for each of the TD funds' expected year-end distributions that may include dividend income, capital gains, or both.

It is important to consult with your tax advisor to help minimize taxes on your total return from a fund including but not limited to:

- year-end tax planning for the amount of dividends and distributions the funds will pay that can affect your estimated tax payments;
- timing of year-end purchase of fund shares before, on or after a fund's record date and the subsequent tax implications, if any. For instance, if you buy shares on or before a fund's record date for a distribution, you will be entitled to the distribution and may be required to pay income or capital gain tax on the distribution.

Moreover, please be mindful of selling and buying shares within a short window that can create a wash sale (selling shares at a loss and buying same or substantially identical security within 30 days before or after the sale). Wash sales do not qualify as a loss on your income tax returns based on IRS's wash sale rule. This rule applies when transacting in equity or bond funds; including when you sell shares in a nonretirement account and purchasing same or substantially identical shares in a Traditional or Roth IRA accounts.

How to use the Distribution Table

The dividend and capital gain distribution information provided in the table below is only to be used as a guide to help estimate the calculation of your taxes.

Please do not use the information below to complete your official tax returns as income and capital gain amounts are likely to change. Also, while less likely, it is possible that the income and capital gain amounts reported to you throughout the year may change in their tax treatment (i.e. reclassification on your Form 1099-DIV). Instead, please wait for your official tax forms and final numbers that will be made available in early February 2019 to help prepare your final tax returns.

Estimating Distribution Amounts

For each of the fund(s) you own, multiply the number of shares you expect to hold on the record and declaration date by the Income Dividend, Short-Term Gain, and Long-Term Gain for the fund's per share amount as listed in the columns below. Please note, for funds that distribute income monthly or quarterly, please refer to your account statements to find the amount of income dividends you have already received this year.

For example, suppose you own 100 shares of the TD Global Low Volatility Equity Fund. At the end of the year, the estimated income dividend per share is $0.0810; the estimated short-term capital gain per share is $0.0000; and the estimated long-term capital gain per share is $0.0659. Therefore, the estimated distribution amount for this fund at the end of year would be as follows:

- Estimated income dividend = 100 shares x $0.0810 per share = $8.10
- Estimated short-term capital gain = 100 shares x $0.00 per share = $0.00
- Estimated long-term capital gain = 100 shares x $0.0659 per share = $6.59
